Anton Szandor LaVey's Round Room: Grass Valley

By Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

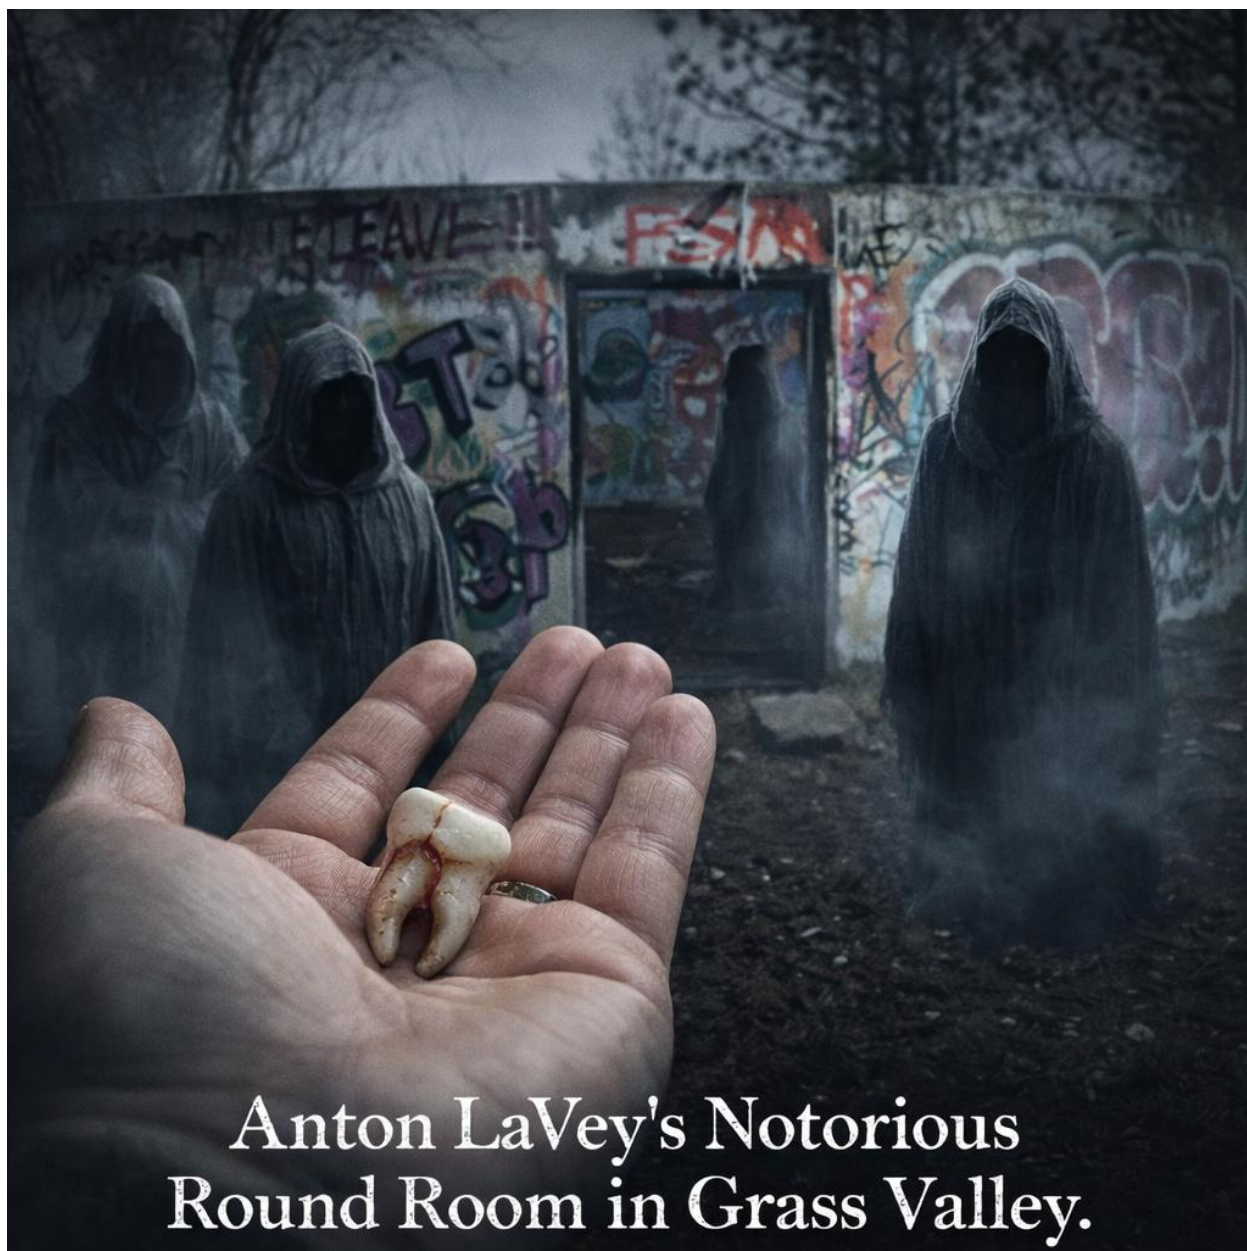

BELOW IS A "BLAST FROM THE PAST"

It usually starts with a simple email. The first email from an anonymous source says.. "Paul, I read your article about the Holbrooke Hotel in Grass Valley, but did you check out the infamous Round Room?" I reply instantly..."what is the Round Room?" Below is the message I got:

"Well, the "Round Room" is located in Grass Valley, CA. If you look it up online you can find some snippets on it and specific directions. I don't know if you deal at all with "dark forces", but this is what is rumored to be at that location. The story goes, that Dr. Anton LaVey, the guy that started the Satanic Church would take followers to that point to perform rituals, sacrifices, etc. It is also rumored to be a place that had a few unexplained murders at that point where only blood has been found, but the bodies never were. We went there in high school once and I felt some type of energy there. It made me uncomfortable, but it could have been my wandering mind at the time. Just thought it might be an interesting point to see if the legend is true. Also, apparently Anton has an abandoned house up there as well, that is rumored to be haunted with a bleeding tree on the property (a little far fetched, I think). I have never been there myself, but have heard stories about that place too."

After receiving this email, it was time for me to do a bit of research and find the location to this urban legend. I discover that the Round Room is located on Wolf Mountain Road. As you reach the top, there is an old abandoned water tower, immersed with graffiti! If you see the water tower, you found the spot! There is a lot of material written about the Founder of the Church of Satan, so I will make my briefing on Anton LaVey short. Anton Szandor LaVey was an avid reader, he enjoyed reading classic dark literature such as Bram Stoker's Dracula. Anton was considered as an 'outsider' and didn't like the gym, nor did he like sports. He was known to be a flashy dresser. Before he got involved in Satanism, he worked at circuses and carnivals. He was also a musician that played at seedy bars and taverns. He once had an affair with Marilyn Monroe, before she became a star. Anton started leaning towards the dark side of life, when he became absorbed in the writings of Aleister Crowley. As time went on, he was known as a psychic investigator/ghostbuster, while majoring in Criminology. He has a daughter named Karla Maritza and a son named Satan Xerxes Carnacki LaVey. Note: One of the investigators on my team Anne Atwell knows Karla and has met her at book events. He had a pet named Togare, a Nubian lion. Anton bought a Victorian home in San Francisco and painted it black, it became the Church of Satan. This Victorian home has now been demolished. In 1966 he declared this as year one - Anno Satanas - First Year of the Age of Satan. Anton carrying his Satanic Bible, became a media sensation, he was referred to by the press as The Black Pope. Celebrities become card carrying Satanists and befriended Anton, such as Jayne Mansfield, Sammy Davis Jr., Marilyn Manson and King Diamond. In fact it was rumored that Jayne Mansfield was cursed by Anton and shortly afterward Jayne Mansfield died in a car accident. Jayne was beheaded due to this car crash, what a horrible way to die.

Anton LaVey's Notorious Round Room in Grass Valley.

Well, now you all know the short version of Anton LaVey's life, let's now talk about the scouting mission to the Round Room! The date is April 19, 2008, Saturday. At 0900 hours, I am waiting on HPI paranormal investigator Anah Denzeiberg. Anah jumps in the car and says, she is ready for today's adventure. At 10:30 hours, we arrive at the Holbrooke Hotel where we meet up with the rest of the paranormal investigators: Randy McCuddy (Randy is active Air Force) & his wife Alexis McCuddy, Anne Atwell (former professional ballerina, that has been featured on The Baryshnikov Collection DVD: The Nutcracker - a DVD that she gives me as a present this day), Tanya Curtis (professional romance paranormal author of 7 books - her website: www.cassidymckay.com Scott Young, Michele Stump/Researcher/Historian. I have a talented team and Tanya is obtaining fodder for her next romance paranormal book! I briefed everyone in the lounge area of the Holbrooke Hotel. The Holbrooke, if you have read my previous articles is very haunted. I feel like I am at home at the Holbrooke, the staff greeted me warmly, well, I know them from before (smile). The staff is hospitable to all of their clients, not only me. I ran into Kelly Sheehan the hostess and with big smiles, she came up to me to say hello. When I first interviewed Kelly, she never had any paranormal experiences at this hotel. She has only worked here for a short time. She has now been initiated to the haunting activities of this hotel. She explains that while sitting at the bar one night, a shot glass moved away from her hand and slid down the bar. She has witnessed bathroom stalls opening and closing on their own. A picture hanging on the wall of an old lady, one night seemed to follow Kelly's movements throughout the room. She has witnessed objects falling off the shelves on their own accord. While we were there, Randy walks up to me and tells me that when he was trying to snap a picture, the camera battery became dead, then when he moved away from the room, the battery was alive and fully charged again. It is known in the paranormal world, that entities sometimes feed off the energy of batteries and will drain a battery instantly. In Room #1 of the Holbrooke, there was some activity. The occupants of this room came out and told staff that the fireplace lit up on it's own and cushions were tossed to the floor.

The preliminary investigative team surveyed the Holbrooke, snapping photographs, video taping and trying to obtain some EVPs. Finally it was time to leave, because we still had the Round Room to investigate. Most of us piled up in Anne Atwell's Crysler Towne & Country van, while Michele & Scott rode together in Scott's car to McCourtney & Auburn Road. Michele was showing us the location of the North Star Mine Lodge, she has been here before. This lodge was originally built for the miners and later became a Boy's Christian Club. It was rumored that the boys were at times neglected and abused by the staff of this lodge. It was also rumored that some of the boys died under mysterious circumstances and have been buried on the property. We had a difficult time finding the Lodge and had to hike down the road, since there were no places to park. Then we had to hike into the foothills looking for the exact location of the Lodge. We were unsuccessful. After the investigation Michele & Scott went back to the location and finally discovered the remnants of the Lodge and did their own investigation.

It was time to move on, we still had the Round Room to investigate. Using a GPS system we located Wolf Mountain Road and climbed a high steep to reach the abandoned water tower. The water tower that is known as the Round Room was a shocking sight to all of us. There was graffiti painted all over the hollowed out structure. The graffiti was definitely Satanic themed.

A large pentagram was drawn on the cement flooring of the structure with a burned out campfire in the middle. Scott, Randy & Alexis became the archaeological part of our team, as they sifted through debris, ashes, dirt & rocks to see what Satanic remnants they could unearth. While we were at this site, we all felt the negative energy of this place. Urban legend has it that many animals were sacrificed here and that possibly one person may have actually died here. Of course, these are only stories told by the locals and we cannot substantiate the stories, but as a writer, I will present you with the stories and our investigation. This site is still being utilized to this day, by believers of Satan. I found date evidence from burned magazines, that indicate people are still partying at this location up to our year of 2008. I found a large syringe, that may be used on large animals to sedate them. Michele and Tanya found a ceramic wolf and the head of what looked like a gnome creature in the burnt remnants. We came in there like a CSI team, shifting through the evidence of a multitude of beer cans, paint aerosol cans, liquor bottles, burned clothing, unknown metallic devices and other oddities. Some of the investigators felt dread. They could feel the evil that resonates in the atmosphere that surrounds the Round Room. I discovered a human molar tooth in the rubble. I could only wonder if 2 people were fighting and one of the fighters lost a tooth in the process?

I looked for any signs of blood and only one area seemed questionable, as the color was a deep brown that seemed soaked into the cement floor. There is a lot of negativity at this location, it may be causing a residual effect for people that visit this spot. The investigation is inconclusive, as no substantial evidence was discovered. We did find some rose quartz strategically placed around the Round Room and remnants of candle burning. The quartz is known to draw energy. I can only wonder if the dark worshippers of this room, have opened a portal that has brought in dark forces into this area? I can only wonder. On this day, we did find something positive on this extensive investigation, we were able to watch some Emus on private property playing and chasing each other. It was a comical sight and it gave us all the feeling there is still some positive energy in this world.

As I close this article, I received this email from Anne, that went on this scouting mission:

"I really had a super time today. It was fascinating seeing Mr. LaVey's forging place for the Church of Satan. Talk about wild energy. That spot had it. Utter chaos and cruelty. Did you notice the brutal pack mentality of the "artwork"? Almost every bit was about subjugation and dominance in one form or another. There's a lot of pain in that place."

Then I received an email from one of our HPI investigators, that reads:

"How strange. A client of mine was telling me this week that he lived out in an area off the grid by Grass Valley where there were Satanists in the early 70s and they surgically eviscerated his dog! Same group??"

My answer to the last email. "Yes, same group." As I conclude this article, there will always be dark forces upon this world. There will always be good vs. evil. To embrace evil, is to inherit evil. The Round Room is a historical site, but it's a site that displays mankind's dark side. A side that we wish to ignore and pretend that it doesn't exist. But to know evil, is the power to combat evil. We were here to learn evil. For we are paranormal combatants and we seek the truth. However dark the truth, it will be exposed, so others can be beware and be vigilant. Godspeed to all.

Special Note: Back in 1978, I actually did an undercover investigation of various cults from the Peoples' Temple, Hara Krishna, Moonies, Church of Scientology and the Church of Satan. I was doing this for my Sociology class. I pretended to want to join each cult and The Church of Satan rejected me and told me to read the Satanic Bible. The Church of Scientology asked me to leave their church. I wrote an article, about this investigation which was published in the Sacramento Bee. My teacher gave me an A+ for the report.

Koh Phi Phi Don is widely considered haunted by locals following the devastating 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami, with numerous reports of ghostly encounters, strange noises, and phantom voices on the beaches. These sightings are deeply rooted in local beliefs that the souls of deceased tourists, whose bodies were never found or properly blessed, remain trapped and wandering the island. During my vacation to Bangkok and Pattaya, I heard about the terrifying hauntings at Koh Phi Phi Don. Some of the people I talked with said that when they walked around the area of Koh Phi Phi Don, they would hear choking or gurgling sounds. Sounds of people drowning. A local that I interviewed named Kamon Chaidee says he came upon a man lying on the beach coughing up water. Kamon went over to help and then the man just disappeared. Kamon was shocked, he just realized he saw a ghost. There is one ghost story after another at Koh Phi Phi Don, Thailand.

ACCORDING TO WIKIPEDIA:

Let's take a look at the 2004 Indian Ocean Tsunami. On 26 December 2004, at 07:58:53 local time (UTC+7), a Mw 9.2–9.3 earthquake struck with its epicenter off the west coast of Aceh, in northern Sumatra, Indonesia. The undersea megathrust earthquake, known in the scientific community as the Sumatra–Andaman earthquake, was caused by a rupture along the fault boundary between the Burma plate and the Indian plate, and reached a maximum Mercalli intensity of IX in some areas. The earthquake caused a massive tsunami with waves up to 30 m (100 ft) high, referred to by British and Commonwealth media as the Boxing Day Tsunami, after the Boxing Day holiday, or the Asian Tsunami, which devastated communities along the surrounding coasts of the Indian Ocean, killing an estimated 227,898 people in 14 countries, especially in Aceh in Indonesia, Sri Lanka, Tamil Nadu in India, and Khao

Lak in Thailand. The direct result was severe disruption to living conditions and commerce in coastal provinces of these and other surrounding countries. It is the deadliest tsunami in history, the deadliest natural disaster of the 21st century, and one of the deadliest natural disasters in recorded history. It is also the worst natural disaster in the history of Indonesia, the Maldives, Sri Lanka, and Thailand.

Now let's take a look at the paranormal activity in this one location called Koh Phi Phi Don.

Tsunami Spirits:

Following the 2004 disaster, many residents and workers reported hearing calls and seeing figures of foreigners, believed to be lost spirits, particularly on the beaches. The Thai culture has strong local beliefs in ghosts, and the concept of Phi Tai Hong (sudden violent death) contribute to the perception of lingering spirits. If a person dies a quick violent death, they will return as a ghost to haunt the land. Some parapsychologists believe that some of these spirits do not realize that they are dead and will wander around aimlessly. A local named Panupong Khamphir aka Panu says that he kept hearing in his ears, a man's voice saying..."what happened?" Panu says he believes the ghost did not know he had died because of the tsunami disaster. Following the mass casualties, residents and visitors held merit-making ceremonies, and some believe the island is still influenced by the traumatic event, requiring spiritual care to help the souls move on. There are mentions of an abandoned hotel on the island that explorers often describe as having an eerie atmosphere. Some Thailand ghosthunters claim at this abandoned hotel that they have been touched and one investigator claims she was bitten on the arm by a spirit. The ghost hunting group conducted a cleansing ritual at the abandoned hotel after their investigator was bitten. The vast majority of Thais believe in ghosts, so local shrines and rituals to appease spirits are common throughout the island. Panu says that many people have seen an apparition of a man with yellow swim trunks, in fact they call him "Yellow Trunks". Yellow Trunks acts like he is looking for something or someone. Maybe a loved one?

Phi Phi Island Cabana Hotel:

Guests have reported feeling "haunted" sensations in certain hotels. Those sensations are mostly felt at the Phi Phi Island Cabana Hotel. More on Phi Tai Hong in Thai folklore. According to some paranormal investigators, people who die sudden violent deaths are believed to become Phi Tai Hong. Phi Tai Hong are dangerous and vengeful spirits that haunt the location of their death because they were unable to fulfill their life's purpose. Some travelers have reported "spooky vibes," strange noises, or feeling like they were being watched in older accommodations like the Phi Phi Island Cabana Hotel. The Phi Phi Island Cabana Hotel is frequently described by visitors as having a "haunted" atmosphere, though reports vary between subjective impressions of its condition and specific paranormal claims. Much of its eerie reputation stems from its location on an island devastated by the 2004 Indian Ocean Tsunami and the hotel's aging, dimly lit facilities. Some guests and locals have reported specific supernatural occurrences, they hear knockings on their door, pacing footsteps going back and forth, shadow images on the ceiling, strange laughter, disembodied crying and sobbing. General local belief suggests the island is haunted by the spirits of those lost in the tsunami, as many victims did not receive traditional cremation or blessings. There is a legend that goes with Room 9. Some accounts mention a "History of the Building" book at the hotel that allegedly details hauntings in Room 9, including staff seeing a woman walk through the door of the vacant room. Other strange phenomena that guests have reported are hearing constant knocking on walls that followed their movements and claims of a floor that was sealed for years due to a rumored past tragedy. There have been mentions of photos showing "ghostly figures" near room doorways and sightings of "foreigner ghosts" playing in the water near the island's beaches.

Voices from Beyond:

Shortly after the 2004 disaster, reports surfaced of residents hearing voices, particularly from tourists, calling out, saying things like "Come on, come on, come and join our party". In the aftermath, rescue workers and remaining residents reported hearing foreigners calling out from the beaches at night or seeing spirits of victims looking for their bodies. Many Thai residents and workers reported seeing ghosts of "farang" (foreigners) wandering the beaches, attributed to the lack of traditional religious cremation/blessing for the many victims. Some travelers on social media have reported strong paranormal activity at a ghost ship that is abandoned in the jungle. Locals mention on Tik Tok that they have seen apparitions on the ship and have seen strange items floating in the air. One local says that during dusk you can see a multitude of orbs floating around the boat.

While there is no scientific evidence of hauntings in the Uncompahgre National Forest, the area is steeped in eerie legends and chilling historical events that contribute to its "haunted" reputation. Most paranormal claims are centered around its abandoned mining towns and the violent history of early frontier settlements. Let's look at the creepy side of this National Forest.

The Ute Curse:

Local lore includes a legend about a Tabeguache (now Uncompahgre) Ute medicine man who allegedly cursed the mountains after realizing the reservation system was a "sham". A few hikers and campers claim that they have felt sick when they approached the mountains. When leaving the mountain area, they felt normal again. Some visitors blame this on the curse.

"Ghostly" Pastures:

The USDA Forest Service describes the Alpine Guard Station as a place where you can still "picture those ghostly figures of the past" from the 1920s sheep grazing industry and even hear the phantom sounds of countless sheep in the distance. Some visitors claim that they have seen ghostly sheep grazing on the grass, only to fade away.

Paranormal Encounters at the San Juan Mountains:

Some visitors and locals have reported strange experiences in the remote San Juan Mountains, including hearing voices in different languages, smelling unexplainable scents in the middle of nowhere, and seeing shadows without a physical source. At Animas Forks, which is located at 11,200 feet, this is one of the most famous ghost towns in Colorado. Visitors often describe a "haunting" atmosphere created by its skeletal wooden buildings, including the "Bay Window House" and a thick-walled jail. Visitors have reported seeing apparitions moving about. Lauren Carlson, tourist left her hairbrush on a counter. The next thing that happened is that the hairbrush lifted up and then flew across the room.

The Strater Hotel (Durango):

Though staff sometimes downplay the claims, it has been cited by some sources as one of Colorado's most haunted hotels. It is known for its "ghost diaries" where guests record unexplained sightings and sounds. Two guests claim that they were held down in their bed by an invisible force holding their blanket.

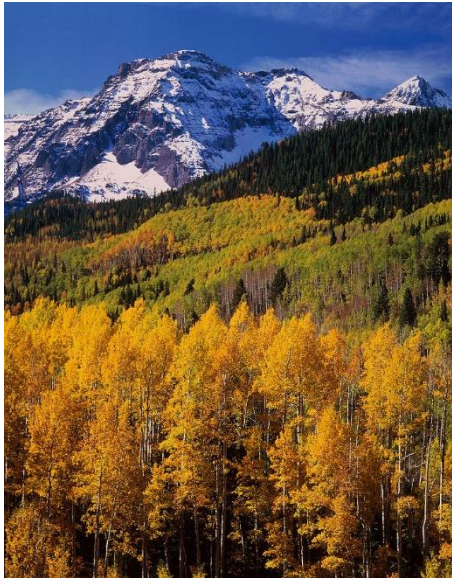

The Historic Alma House Inn (Silverton):

Open since 1902, this hotel is rumored to host several ghostly apparitions from the town's early mining days. Ghostly miners have been seen walking down the hallway and entering a room. Two women guests have claimed that they were pinched.

South San Juan Wilderness:

Locals have speculated about a "curse" in this remote area following clusters of unusual deaths, such as three hunters dying within eight days due to lightning strikes and sudden collapses. Some visitors have claimed to have encountered Ute spirits. Regional lore includes stories from Indigenous perspectives regarding the presence of Ute spirits throughout the range. Stories persist of a curse placed by a Ute medicine man following the removal of his people, with some claiming to see, hear, or feel spirits in the mountains. More ghostly miners have been seen at Alta Lakes Area. Alta Lakes Area is a former mining site near Telluride that is home to abandoned structures and spooky legends. Reports in the Lake City area include sightings of shadowy figures moving rapidly over snow, strange, unidentifiable voices, and a general sense of unease or "unwelcome presence". The area near Lake City is also famous for the unsettling tale of Alfred Packer, who confessed to killing and eating his fellow travelers. Some ghost hunting groups have tried to summon Alfred Packer and claim they were successful in the use of Ouija Boards and capturing EVPs from their digital recorders. Those claims have not been verified.

Carson Ghost Town:

Located below Uncompahgre Peak, this tiny abandoned 1889 mining village is noted for its eerie atmosphere, though it is not yet officially considered a "paranormal hot spot". Some visitors have claimed they have seen shadow figures moving about in some of the old buildings.

Fort Uncompahgre (Original Site):

The original trading post was the site of a violent 1844 attack where Ute warriors killed most of the inhabitants, leaving only one survivor to tell the tale. A replica museum now stands in Delta.

Alferd Packer Site:

The infamous 1874 cannibalism case involving Alferd Packer occurred as his group attempted a shortcut through the nearby San Juan mountains during a brutal winter.

Abandoned Infrastructure:

Historical remnants like the Trout Lake Trestle are often described as holding the "memory of a time long passed," where some imagine hearing phantom train whistles.

Ghost Towns & Mining Camps:

Areas in the Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre, and Gunnison National Forests are known for abandoned mining camps and towns where visitors sometimes report hearing voices.

Hamilton Ghost Town:

A specific site featuring a Hamilton Ghost Town (Moments in Dirt and Ink) with a cemetery on a hill, according to personal accounts.

Surrounding Region Haunts:

The broader Uncompahgre Gorge area and nearby, such as St. Elmo Ghost Town, are well-known to ghost tour enthusiasts in Colorado, according to the UCHealth Today article.

Fort Uncompahgre (Original Site):

The original trading post was the site of a violent 1844 attack where Ute warriors killed most of the inhabitants, leaving only one survivor to tell the tale. A replica museum now stands in Delta. People have heard screams and disembodied yelling at the original site.

Ghost Towns & Mining Camps:

Is Tuamotus, French Polynesia haunted?

The Tuamotus in French Polynesia are often described as having an eerie or "haunted" atmosphere due to isolated, abandoned coconut plantations, ruined copra camps, and lingering local legends. Visitors have reported feelings of unease or sadness on certain, desolate motus (islets), with some areas resembling ghost towns due to population decline, particularly on smaller, remote atolls.

 www.svsugarshack.com +4

Key aspects of this reputation include:

- "Ghost Villages": Remnants of early 20th-century copra production, including empty homes and abandoned warehouses, create an unsettled, forgotten landscape.
- Legends and Spirits: Polynesian traditions include a strong belief in spirits, with stories of ghosts sometimes appearing at sunset.
- The "Dangerous Archipelago": The islands are known for treacherous reefs, deep, unexpected "bombies" (underwater coral heads), and historic tales of isolation, which contribute to a sense of foreboding.

- Isolated Cemeteries: Specific sites, such as in the Makemo area, are marked with simple, often remote, shell-covered graves that create a melancholy, ghostly experience for travelers.

While these experiences are subjective, the sheer isolation and history of abandonment contribute to the perception of the Tuamotus being haunted.

BELOW IS A BLAST FROM THE PAST!

The Asevedo Residential Haunting and The Haunted City of Folsom 🕒 Sat Jan 26, 2008 2:45 pm

It's a full moon and the date is October 26, 2007, Saturday. Fellow HPI paranormal investigator and Jazma Online! story contributor Debbie Talani came over to go over some of her writings with me. We take a break and let my Jack Russell Terrier Pika run around out front, when my neighbor Nick Asevedo comes over and tells me more about the paranormal activity that has been going on in his house. Debbie looks at me and I look at her and we both say in unison..."let's do it!" Debbie grabs her digital camera and electronic audio recorder. I grab my notepad, pen and digital camera. Nick's family were all inside watching TV, his sisters, his cousins, his friend Trumane Bell who sports silver plated vampire fangs.....I kid you not.....the guy has fangs! I start the interview process with Nick and he says that many times, he has seen a white blur moving swiftly in the family room, it's been happening a lot lately. The activity started a few months ago. Nick is no stranger to haunted houses, because he lived in a haunted house in Reno. A small boy 7 or 8 years old drowned in the bathtub of his home in Reno. The child ghost became close with Nick. Nick believes that somehow this small boy ghost has followed him to his new residence in which he lives with his father, mother, sisters, cousins and girlfriend Jainey Warden. Lately the cabinets have been found open, when the family makes sure that all cabinets are closed. Beatrice, Nick's sister has witnessed the TV going off and on by itself. TVs in Beatrice's bedroom and the family room have been turned off and on by itself repeatedly. Nick recalls that when he lived in Reno, a plant on the living room coffee table, slid across the table and onto the floor shattering. His mother saw the full body apparition of the little boy in the Reno residence. While we were at the home doing our preliminary investigation, some of the family members and Debbie were feeling cold spots throughout the house. Nick's little cousin Ruben points to an area of the kitchen where he says he sees a little boy. I snap a picture and the picture shows a huge red orb. I snap a second picture and it's gone. Debbie picks up a lot of EVPs, the EVPs say the following:

Paul: Are you here for Nick? EVP: Sigh. (Little boy's voice).

Debbie is talking with Nick. EVP: I got you, I want you. (Male adult voice).

Debbie: Do you like playing hide and seek? EVP: Yes. (Little boy voice).

Debbie to Blanca (Nick's cousin): Are you scared? EVP: Yes. (Little boy voice).

Nick cell phone rings, Nick picks up and says hello two times. EVP: Very distinct, little boy voice..."Hello".

Afterwards Nick cell phones dies and later it reactivates.

EVPs: Inaudible whispers of children.

EVP: Heavy breathing from a child.

EVP: Mysterious growl.

The pictures I snap around the house are of a distinct crystal orb in the backyard, a huge red orb in the backyard, two small orbs near the living room where Nick is sitting. One small orb near Trumane Bell in the living room where he is sitting. Red orb in the kitchen where Nick's little cousin Ruben points at, indicating that he sees the small boy ghost. The way Ruben points where entities are, reminds me of the movie 'Sixth Sense'..."I see dead people." It's kind of spooky seeing this little boy walking around the house, then stop and start pointing at an unseen apparition. I was more spooked out in watching Ruben, than I was after watching Hostel 2 and Mr. Brooks earlier this evening. Jainey Warden relates to me that when she was in the laundry room of Nick's home, she looked up and saw a distinct 'shadow person'. The shadow person that she saw disappeared within a few seconds. I came to the conclusion that Nick may be haunted, because when Nick and Jainey stayed out in Arizona for a couple of months, the place where they were staying at, they had an unusual incident happen to them in the bathroom. The toothpaste tube glides up into the air, moves across the sink and falls to the floor on its own accord. On Saturday, October 27, 2007, I have a meeting with Debbie, Nick and Jainey. Debbie and I go over our findings, we let Nick & Jainey listen to the EVPs and I show everyone the unusual orb pictures I took at Nick's home. I contact Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe immediately in Las Vegas, where she is doing her own paranormal scouting mission and attending a wedding. Shannon tells me to get a team ready for the investigation. So, as I get results from the full-blown investigation of Nick's home, be prepared to see what we find!

This night, I get dressed up as a Warriors NBA basketball player superstar, with Warriors jersey, sunglasses and carrying my basketball. Why am I dressed up this way? Am I a Warriors fan? Nope, not at all, in fact I don't even watch basketball, I'm just getting ready for Michele Paykel/John Wachter's Halloween Bash at their home. I arrive and there are a zillion Halloween decorations everywhere, a huge talking Frankenstein and some other big monstrous figurines that move, talk and greet you. HPI members that show up are Kristen Sheley in her generic Halloween costume, where you can check off the box if you are a ghost, ghoul, werewolf, goblin, etc. John and Michele are pirates, Chris Grissom is Chris Grissom, Donna Reynolds is a witch (in real life she is a witch), Alicia Perry is a boxer, Mary Casiano looks like a serial killer nurse in scrubs. I gorge down chicken wings and a dozen other finger foods and chase it down with Pepsi, while Chris was making like James Bond and drinking a fancy Martini. While Black Sabbath music is playing, I was stumbling over mock-up coffins and carried on conversations with HPI members about past HPI investigations and upcoming paranormal investigations that HPI is planning. I hung out until midnight and decided I better head off home, because at 9am, I have to be up and ready for my scouting mission to the City of Folsom. I want to know about the shops that are supposedly haunted in this old town.

October 28, 2007, Sunday is here. I'm on the road by 9:00am and I am picking up the woman who has given me a tip that most of the City of Folsom is haunted. That woman is Victoria Roff. Victoria is no stranger to the paranormal. She describes her own experiences. At the age of 12, she lived in an apartment that was near a home that she thought was haunted. When she would walk past this home to her apartment, she would observe the outdoor faucet handle turn on its own and water would come out. She observed this several times and it was frightening for her. At the age of 18, she lived in Vallejo and heard footsteps outside of the cottage she lived in. Her dogs would react to the sound of footsteps by barking. She says that it sounded like someone was walking with boots on. Victoria and her boyfriend observed a wine bottle full of pennies tip slowly on its side. There were so many occurrences, Victoria decided to give the ghost a name and she started calling the ghost Sandy. Sandy was known to bring in cold chills to the cottage, during hot Summer days.

I deputized Victoria as a paranormal investigator-in-training and off we went to investigate the City of Folsom. Our first stop was Mary's Gold Miner Restaurant for breakfast. Investigators need a healthy substance of nutrition in their stomachs before any good investigation. I went for the ham & cheese omelet, biscuit and some fried tatters, that were chased down with a tall glass of milk. We were now off and running, our first stop was:

Planet Earth Rising / PlanetEarthRising.com 625 Sutter Street, Folsom, CA 95630

We spoke with Darrell Trimble, Shirley Caddy/Intuitive, Michael Mansur - Independent Contractor/Clairvoyant Channel Energy Healer and Tiffany Tyler who all work in the store that sells minerals, jewelry, clothing, books, music, Wiccan paraphernalia, Egyptian - Buddhism artifacts, mystical items, metaphysical material. They even have spiritual readings for their customers. Some of the activities these employees say happen are that books have flown off shelves, sometimes items are out of place, Clara the ghost is known to shut off the lights. Planet Earth Rising is built on the site of one of the first Bank of America buildings built in Folsom and other past buildings were the Folsom Telegraph and Orangevale Times building. Shirley believes that there is a portal somewhere in the back of this store. She points out at the discoloration on the wall that she feels looks like a religious icon. Michael Mansur said that one time he felt some negative energy in the store and felt a feeling of dread.

Historic Folsom Hotel - 703 Sutter Street, Folsom CA 95630.

Previously named the New Western Hotel, this hotel was built by a man named Zimmerman for a cost of $7,000.00. To complete the building of this hotel, it needed the installation of the back bar mirror. Samuel Levits, the maker of this mirror asked Zimmerman for the hotel keys, so he can work on getting the mirror ready for the bar. While cutting the mirror, Levits cut his wrist severely and in a desperate attempt to save himself kicked over some keys towards the door to get it open so he can run for help, before he bled to death. Unfortunately, Levits died. Many people claim they can still hear Levits kick those keys towards the door. If the sound of keys is still heard, it sounds like a good case of residual haunting in this hotel. While at this hotel I interviewed Desiree Lhoir - bartender, Kalene Varando - bartender (over the phone) and Randy Hawthorne - bouncer. Randy has heard a piano playing while closing up the bar. Desiree says that before I came to this hotel there was a loud banging on the bar table that startled everyone and then a few minutes later Victoria and I walked through the door. Desiree said it was like if the ghost of Samuel Levits was warning them that they will have visitors. Randy shows me a photo that Kalene took of the regulars and on the far left hand side is the ghostly image of Samuel Levits? I told Kalene she must send me this picture via email. It was the most incredible photo of a ghost I have ever seen. The picture was taken in 2006. Desiree says that sometimes the back doors open on their own accord. Randy explains to me that the hotel was built in 1885 and he believes there are 2 entities in this hotel. Samuel Levits and the Folsom Hotel Lady of the Night Ghost who likes to goose people as they walk by. The Folsom Hotel Lady of the Night has a real sense of humor most patrons say. Randy is a bit of a Folsom Hotel historian as he explains to me that there are tunnels underneath the hotel that were built during prohibition days to smuggle in liquor. Kalene over the phone tells me that people see faces in the mirrors. Some patrons have seen shadowy figures walk by and disappear. Other patrons feel a presence on the bar stool next to them. There are noises mysteriously coming from the bar, when there is no one around. Bottles at times fall from the bar shelf. Kalene was once touched on her back and has seen shadowy figures dart around with her peripheral vision. Kalene has worked at the hotel for 2 years and tells me that in the basement there is an identical bar as to the bar we are sitting at. Then Kalene describes the days when the hotel was used as a brothel. There is a lot of history at the Historic Folsom Hotel and as I walked away, Randy stops me and tells me that Folsom Lake Bowl is also haunted by a ghost called Mary the Ghost. Randy has actually seen Mary the Ghost and describes her as a small petite woman and that one night at this bar, he approached her and she vanished in front of his eyes.

Snyder's House of Jade - 709 Sutter Street, Folsom, CA 95630 houseofjade@comcast.net

At this establishment I interviewed Ken Snyder and Irene Snyder, owners. Irene describes how a medium came to their shop and looked at a singing bowl and knew who made it and started describing the makers, two old Korean men. The medium was from out of town and was brought here by the police to solve a murder. The murder was solved, she located the victim's body in Granite Bay using psychometrics, the touching of objects and reading the energy that emanates from a deceased person's possessions. One employee of this store, felt a cold breath on her neck and this store was built upon an old mortuary where they stored bodies and built caskets.

Folsom's Sutter Club

The ghost is named Louie. Sandi Walker - bartender gave the name to this ghost, she had to call him something and Louie sounded like a good name. Louie likes throwing pool cues around, shuts off lights and sometimes sends glassware from the bar flying into open space. Louie is mischievous and loves to harass new employees. Louie is known to get cranky when changes or renovations are made of the bar. Sandi has worked at the bar for 16 years.

Powerhouse Pub:

The ghost is called Kirby. Kirby was the prior owner of this establishment. I interviewed Jamie Sorensen who has been a bartender of this establishment for 2 years. I interviewed three patron regulars named Todd Swode, Thomas (Tom) N. Latimer and Ed Hoard. Legend has it Kirby cursed anyone that would make changes to his bar. No one has challenged the curse. Thomas also knows stories about the Historic Folsom Hotel and said that a female patron was frantic, because she lost her earring and the earring mysteriously appeared on the bar. The female patron was ecstatic with excitement as she was reunited with her expensive and sentimental earring. Todd tells me that he had his own paranormal experience in Modesto. He says that his great, great grandmother made her presence known by sliding a family picture across the wall and then letting it drop, so when someone tells him that Powerhouse Pub may be haunted, he is not skeptical about it. The patrons and Jamie tell me that when I have time, I should interview the owner named Murray Weaver, that he may have more ghostly stories for me. He is the owner of this establishment and another establishment called the Chicago Fire, which is next door.

As I left Folsom and drove Victoria home, with all of the stories and hearing the same stories told by different people and they were all consistent, I would have to agree that the City of Folsom must be haunted and I would like to see a group of HPI investigators do a full-blown investigation of the Historic Folsom Hotel.

As I drove home this evening I get a call. Two young ladies named Jasmine and Murial from Pharr, Texas tell me that their home is haunted. Both of them saw the full body apparition of a little girl. They tell me that their mother was touched on her head by the ghost. They have been touched by the little girl ghost and they have both witnessed dishes falling from the shelves. I tell them that I will get in touch with Dallas Paranormal Investigations to assist them with this problem and have their mother call me to get some more clarification on the activities. Both girls sounded frightened as activity was occurring around them as they were speaking to me.

It was nice to finally get home and relax. Ghosthunting can be an exhausting past-time and I was ready to transfer my written notes into this article and prepare information for possible upcoming investigations from my interviews. HPI has an army of investigators that are willing to take on some of these challenging investigations and when the call of duty presents itself, we are there! A fan named Deb from Reno, Nevada writes in about her own paranormal experience, and you can find her story at my website at: http://forums.jazmaonline.com/topic.asp?TOPIC_ID=465

SIGHTING OF THE CRYPTID TSUCHINOKO

Date: March 13, 2026.

Location: Oze National Park, Japan

Sighting: Cryptid known as the Tsuchinoko

Witnesses: Hiker Asahi Watanabe and Hiker Kenji Yamamoto

Hikers Asahi and Kenji claim that they were hiking along a trail at Oze National Park in Japan and they came across a slithering snake that has a huge belly. When the snake turned its head towards the hikers, the hikers took off quickly and headed back to their vehicle. They believe they encountered the cryptid known as the Tsuchinoko.

ACCORDING TO WIKIPEDIA:

Tsuchinoko are described as being between 30 and 80 centimetres (12 and 31 inches) in length, similar in appearance to a snake, but with a central girth that is much wider than its head or tail, and as having fangs and venom similar to that of a viper.^[1] Some accounts also describe the tsuchinoko as being able to jump up to 1 metre (3.3 feet) in distance followed immediately by a second jump while still in the air.

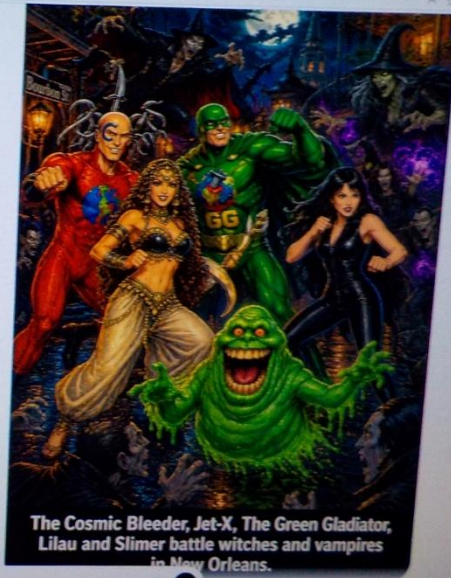

According to legend, some tsuchinoko have the ability to speak and a propensity for lying, and they are also said to have a taste for alcohol. Legend records that it will sometimes swallow its own tail so that it can roll like a wheel, similarly to the "hoop snake" of American legend.
